What is a Flexible Schedule Continuous Progress School Program?

P.A.C.E. High School students will take a few courses at a time which are scheduled around work and other responsibilities whenever possible. Continuous progress means that classes go on throughout the school year including the summer. Students are invited to complete courses at their own pace, quicker than traditional school schedules of semesters and regular school years if desired. Coursework is on the Internet and many assignments can be completed wherever and whenever you can use a computer.

How does P.A.C.E. High School differ from traditional high school education?

Students have flexible schedules that allow them to come and go. Classes are designed so that students can move at their own pace and complete classes more quickly if they wish to make that commitment. Everyone starts with a clean slate and is counseled to make realistic educational choices that meet their own needs. Students are in charge of their own progress. P.A.C.E. High School staff support, counsel and teach according to the pace that each student wishes to take.

In some ways, the P.A.C.E. High School approach to education empowers students to succeed in future educational endeavors because it is up to each student to progress by making wise choices toward achieving. Those who have graduated from this program tell the staff that they have learned how to organize themselves to be successful.
